

National Semiconductor provides a wide array of drivers and utilities for its 10/100 and 10/100/1000 Ethernet products. Many of these drivers and utilities are provided on National Semiconductor's website, www.national.com/appinfo/networks, for your use.

Some drivers require compilation for the specific Operating System (OS) and hardware system that they will be used with. For some of these drivers, source code is available under a Source License Agreement (SLA).

The VxWorks driver is one of the RTOS drivers that requires the SLA. Please contact your National Semiconductor representative for further information.

Regards,

National Semiconductor Corporation